

SAN LUIS OBISPO OPEN SPACES

Hikers and mountain bikers can explore 45+ miles of trails running through over 3,500 acres of Open Space properties belonging to the City of San Luis Obispo. For those who like longer treks, a connector trail exists between the Irish Hills and Johnson Ranch Open Spaces, with a combined 22+ miles of trails. The City encourages you to experience the different Open Spaces, which also spreads out the impacts on the land.

Mountain lions live here

There are natural hazards in any wilderness area, so stay observant and don't take chances. Mountain lions avoid human contact, but if you go into mountain lion habitat, go in a group or carry a walking stick. Keep children and pets close. If you see a lion – which can grow up to 160 pounds and eight feet long – keep your eyes on it and back away slowly. Do not run. Raise your arms and yell so the lion knows you are not prey. If a mountain lion attacks, fight back.
